Old Home Day

By: Edie Leak

This year, Old Home Day was just as grand as ever! For those who are not familiar with the holiday, it is a time to celebrate the wonderful town of Mason, NH and its historical inhabitation, such as Uncle Sam. It is tradition that the town prepares lunch for the whole community, and residents sell homemade goods and hold yard sales at the town gazebo. Some of the main attractions are the pony rides on local horses and the new "Dunk Kinder Morgan" dunking tank, supported by donations from Pipeline protesters. Another feature are the local singers and bands invited on the gazebo to play their favorite songs. It was held on September 13 this year, and will continue every year at the same time and place. New attractions and stands are added every year. Even people from out of town are welcome. Come join the celebration next year!

We would like to welcome Ms. Levick, our new music teacher, to the Mason Elementary School and to the Mason Community. We look forward to the many things she can offer our students.

Extracurricular Activities

By: Mason McCracken

This year at Mason Elementary School, the week is more busy than ever! After school, students can participate in all sorts of after school clubs. Mason on the Move, Garden Club, Destination Imagination, Music Lessons and Puppetry are all after school. In school, we have Chorus, Writer's club, and Lunch Bunch. Different teachers throughout the school help with different after or in school clubs. The students can't thank the teachers and volunteers enough for putting together the extracurricular activities.

School Additions

By: Edie Leak

This year at Mason Elementary School, the head staff has decided to change a few things up. The school now has a recycling banner award and new recycling cans, new buses to keep up the fresh reputation, and a brand-new rug out front, keeping our school clean as a whistle. The United States of America mural in the hallway by the art/music and computer room is finally finished, thanks to Mrs. Jimeno the art teacher and many little, helpful hands. It has the name of every student in the school in the year of 2015 and includes a painting of the school by one of the third graders. You may have noticed their is also a new clock in the front hallway and an umbrella on one of the picnic tables in the courtyard. The school is going to buy one for every table soon.
